Item 8.01. Other Events.

On December 13, 2019, United Therapeutics Corporation (“UT”) announced a delay in the potential launch of the Implantable System for Remodulin® from 2020 to 2021. As previously announced, the system was developed in collaboration with Medtronic Inc. (“Medtronic”), the manufacturer of the system. Although the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (“FDA”) previously approved Medtronic’s premarket approval application (“PMA”) for the device in December 2017, UT’s ability to launch the product is subject to Medtronic satisfying various conditions to its PMA approval. As a result of recent FDA communications, Medtronic has indicated that these conditions will not be satisfied during 2020. UT has no control over when or whether these conditions will be met.
